Department of State Shares Important Information Ahead of Tomorrow's Municipal Election

Harrisburg, PA – Today, Secretary of the Commonwealth Al Schmidt encouraged Pennsylvanians planning to vote at the polls in person to review the comprehensive voter information at vote.pa.gov ahead of tomorrow's election.

Schmidt also reminded Pennsylvanians that unofficial results from the Commonwealth's 67 counties will be posted as they are available on the Department of State's elections return site, electionreturns.pa.gov, after the polls close at 8 p.m. That site provides totals and county-by-county breakdowns for statewide contests, including the judicial retention races.

"Municipal elections like this year's are important because this is when voters choose the local officials who make decisions that impact their day-to-day lives," Schmidt said. "The Department of State wants to ensure that every registered voter can make their voice heard and cast their ballot safely and securely."

Schmidt reminded Pennsylvanians that:

- Polls will be open across the Commonwealth from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Any voter in line by 8 p.m. will be allowed to cast their ballot. Voters can find their polling place at vote.pa.gov.
- All completed mail ballots must be returned to the county elections board by 8 p.m. in order to be counted.

Schmidt shared with Pennsylvanians their rights at the polls:

- If a voter requested a mail ballot but decides to vote in person instead, they can surrender their ballot materials, including the outer envelope, at their polling place and vote there. If the voter no longer has their mail ballot, or never received the one they applied for, they can vote by provisional ballot at their polling place.
- First-time voters, or those voting for the first time in a new precinct, must show identification. Acceptable options include both photo and non-photo ID.

- If a voter's name is not in the poll book, poll workers can call the county board of elections to see if the voter is listed in another precinct in the county. A registered voter who is in the wrong polling place should go to the correct polling place; however, a voter who believes they are registered in that precinct and should be listed in that poll book may vote there by provisional ballot.
- Voters who moved within Pennsylvania but did not update their address before the election may vote a final time in their previous precinct, as long as they update their address at the polling place.
- Voters who have been told by their county that their mail ballot may not be counted due to an error – such as a missing signature or secrecy envelope – may vote by provisional ballot at their polling place.
- In a sudden situation such as unexpected illness, disability, or last-minute absence from their municipality, voters can request an emergency absentee ballot. The deadline to submit that application and ballot to their county elections office is 8 p.m. on Election Day.
- Voters have the right to assistance at the polling place, including language or literacy assistance. A voter may select any person to assist as long as the person is not their employer, union representative, or the polling place's Judge of Elections. A voter also has the right to privacy at the polling place.
- Voters have the right to vote without being subjected to intimidation, harassment, or discriminatory conduct. A voter who experiences any of the above should report it to their county board of elections or their district attorney's office. They can also call the Department of State's year-round voter hotline at 1-877-VOTESPA (1-877-868-3772).

Schmidt also encouraged Pennsylvanians to use the Department's voter education toolkit – which is available in English, Spanish, and Chinese – to learn more about the municipal election.
